leg To-day to Save the Enlon? What has been done to endanger it? That's the first question. No council of physicians, however large, can prescribe a remedy, unless it agrees upon the nature of the disease. What has been done to the Union? A President has been elected according to the forms of the Constitution. Is

Union? A President has been elected according to the forms of the Constitution. In that to be recognized as a cause for dissolution? Does that demand a compromise in order to save the Union? Then the Union is not worth saving. It would be nothing but perpetual anarchy; and despotism would be a rehief from our popular institutions: Is there say thing in the principles or intentions of the President-elect and his party that justifies South Carolina or any part of the South in seceding from the Union? Has the Republican Party a determination to make war upon the domestic relations of the Southern States, in order to abolish slavery. make war upon the domestic relations of the Southern States, in order to abolish slavery, or to incite servile war, or to interfere with it in any respect? If it has, let the Union meeting declare it in unmistakable terms. Let them not cry peace, when there is no peace for the South; but proclaim to them that the character and sentiments of the majority of our months are dangerous to majority of our people are dangerous to attempt to conceal this would be to attempt to conceal this would be treachery to the people of the South. They have a right to know the sentiments and purposes of the party which has now got the control of the free States, and to judge for themselves whether they will frust to the chances of this party being overcome, or whether a union with States, which should even have a minority of people with incendiary purposes toward their property, would be consistent with their safety.

The crisis demands the truth. The South has a right to judge the sentiments of the people of the free States by the party which is in power. If the Republican Party intends any violation of the constitutional rights of the South, or of their own constitutional obligations, let it be clearly declared to the South, on white their constitutions, and the row by this meeting. No matter how obligations, let it be clearly declared to the South row by this meeting. No matter how much demanciation it may heap on such sentiments and purposes, let the facts be stated. The meeting can only state what the case is now. It can promise no future revolution in the sentiments of the people of the North. How can a meeting of the Cincinnatians pledge the people of the North, or of Ohio, or even of Cincinnati? What meeting can draw out the popular leviathan with a hook? The South can only judge of the future sentiments of the people of the North, by the past and present; and the meeting will only try to deceive and betray the South, if it covers up the purposes of the dominant party, and pledges any revolution of its sentiments in the future.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature,

Self-preservation is the first law of nature Self-preservation is the first law of nature, in States as well as individuals. This is the higher law of nations, above constitutions or compacts. If a Republican national Administration, or a Republican ascendancy in the free States, is dangerous to the domestic relations of the South, or threatens domestic relations of the South, or threatens any of their constitutional rights, the South has a right to secede. Let it be called rebellion or treason, it is justified by the supreme right of self preservation. Having shown them their danger, we have no right to ask them to stay and risk their own sestmetion.

If on the contrary, the election of a Re-publican President is only a change of parties in the administration of the constitutional functions of the Government, and implies no violation of the rights or safety of any section of the Union, let this meeting so declare it, boldly and without equivocation. There is no middle course between truth and isehood. Humiliation will do no good. the sentiments of the majority of the people of the North are such as in the desperate straits of partisan warfare have been represented to the South, she could not said; say in the Union, though the mer-cantile class of all the Southern cities should estentatiously eat the dirt of humili-ation. But if the election of a Republicen President purposes no infringe-ment of constitutional and local rights, then a true representation of the case would disarm the South of every reason for stantial Blave States any such desire. It would restore fraternal relations between the border States. Then the question would be only whether the Union and Constitution, in the letter and spirit in which they were founded, and have always existed, shall be founded, and have always existed shall be maintained, or whether they shall be surrendered to rebellion and treason. Capital, and business—which is capital—is proverbially timid or conservative; but when the question becomes reduced to this, it is not to be supposed that mercantile men will hestitate between the maintenance of the Constitution and Union, or the recognition of rebellion and effects ion as a constitutional right, and at a partition remode for any rebellion and secession as a constitutional right, and as a partisan remody for any grievance, either real or imaginary.

Let us not have a meeting under the name of Union, to be made the tool of a set of broken-down politicians, who hope to retrieve the fortunes of the party they have ruined, by exciting sectional hostility. That colley has broken down a party and is the policy has broken down a party, and is the cause of the present troubles. The hair of that dog will not cure the Union. And let that dog will not cure the Union. And let us have no such humiliating sentiments as "concession before secession." Justice requires no concession. Let justice be established. The maintenance of the Constitution in its integrity and the execution of the laws is not concession. And any thing less than this is not preserving the Union. There is no Union left if the Constitution is gone. Let us not, under the name of Union, establish rebellion and secession as a power in our Government, superior to the Constitution, to be resorted to or threatened at every Presidential election, and made the alternative of every demand. Such a political organization would make the business and capital of the country the foot-ball of and capital of the country the foot-ball of partisan contests. No country could prosper under such an organization. Instead of protecting property—one of the first duties of government—it would sacrifice the property and material interests of the country by its own elections. Such a saving of the Union would be its swift destruction.

Relief in the Payment of Taxes. The time for payment of taxes without penalty will be out to-morrow. After that a penalty of five per cent. accrues, and the taxes on personal property can be put into the hands of the Sheriff for summary collection by distraint of property. The rate of taxation in this city is heavy, and amount of personal taxation is very large. We are informed that a large amount is unpaid at this

The bank currency which formed the chief part of the circulation here, has collapsed; money is locked up, and there is actually not the currency to pay the taxes. Men whose solvency is undoubted, are distressed for money to pay their taxes. To distrain the property of business men is to accide their property and seriously damsacrifice their property and seriously dam-age their credit. The time is an extraordi-tary one, and demands extraordinary means of relief.

in 1857 the Treasurer extended the time of payment sixty days, without penalty.
This is a precedent for the present time, and the need is as great now as it was then. We are not aware by what legal warrant the Treasurer did this at that time, but we suppose, of course, that if the case found no legal obstacles then, it would not now. Our citizens are an exceedingly well-taxed community; and they are entitled to this relief if it can be grantled; and we present that if it can be granted; and we presume that our Treasurer will not be backward in doing what he can to belp them over the crisis.

The Union-Ricering To-day.

The call for this meeting, at Pike's Operaheuse, at two o clock to-day, will be found in another column. Let our citizens attend promptly, and give a clear and decided expression of their devotion to the whole Union; and demand the maintenance of the Constitution, and the enforcement of the laws as the only means for its preservation.
